The Republicans tell a hard one on Dr. Pilcher, the Populist manager of the asylum for weak-minded boys at Winfield. They say that the other day three or four colored boys were playing on the street, when one of them looked up and saw a man coming. He shouted to the others, "Run, boys, for your life; here comes Dr. Pilcher." Most people understand what he meant.

The Independence Tribune, published at the home of Judge McCue, ought to know him pretty well. Its last issue speaks thusly of him: "Judge McCue went to the Coffeyville Journal to make announcement first of his candidacy as an independent candidate for judge. The judge is an all-the-year-round Democrat, except when he wants an office, and then he thinks it a sin to elect a partisan judge. But the Populists are onto his ways and their committee refused to call a convention to nominate, and Mr. McCue will come far short of getting all their votes."

There never was a time when the people watched so closely the advertising columns of their favorite home newspaper as now. The reason is obvious. Their money is so limited that they are compelled to seek out the very best opportunities for its expenditure so that it may be made as effective as possible. The business men who have bargained for the people should act accordingly.—Chanute Blade.

At Enid, O. T., the race for claims and town lots one year ago was commemorated. The feature of the occasion was an exact reproduction of the original race for the townsite, the prize to the winner being a lot valued at $2,000. Fifteen thousand people participated in the race, but the real contest was between 4,000 horsemen, Indians and cowboys. It was the most wonderful race, with systematic entries, on record. The prize lot was reached simultaneously by a Cheyenne Indian and a Kansas cowboy named Parks.

Governor Lewelling has given his opinion of the Kansas working girls, and in November, through their fathers, brothers and sweethearts, they will speak their contempt emphatically for the slanderous executive. "What can we hope for," said Lewelling, in a recent speech, "under conditions that make ten girls applicants for each available place, where one only can be favored? What becomes of the other nine? They are compelled to seek shelter with the women whose ways lay hold on hell." That is to say, fathers and mothers of Kansas, that nine out of every ten of your daughters, if they choose to earn their own clothes, become prostitutes and harlots. This is the opinion of your present governor, and every father and brother who votes for him simply says: "Right you are, governor."—Howard Courant.

That Chicago company is still figuring on building an electric road from Webb City to Carthage, and it will probably do little else but figure, too. If Carthage gets an electric road it will be built by the Southwest Missouri Electric Railway Company, and by no other. There is too much gab about Mr. Fitch, who represents the Chicago concern.

A GORGEOUS WEDDING.

One of the most brilliant marriage ceremonies within the history of the city took place Thursday evening at the residence of the bride's parents, when Miss Kittie Van Ranssacker and Mr. O'Toole Jones were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. It was a scene of glitter and gold, resplendent with true love, and circus spangles, and floral arches, and lascivious young cupids, and wedding marches, and "short order lunches," such as the citizens of Baxter Springs seldom have an opportunity of beholding. The bride and groom were elaborately gotten up for the occasion and attracted considerable attention when they pranced in under the folding doors of the summer kitchen, but the groomsman, Mr. McKelly O'Carroll, and the bridesmaid, Miss Becky Bartlett, in their luxurious Worth gowns (worth $15) and Kane's $2 earrings, were the attraction of the evening. Chief Justice English of the Superior Court of the City of Baxter Springs performed or worked off the impressive marriage ceremony in accordance with the city ordinances made and in such cases provided, in his usual felicitous manner.

A grand march or rush then took place for the supper table where a superb collation had been prepared under the supervision of that prince of caterers, Ed. Seaman. It is unnecessary to dwell on the supper. Suffice it to say the cake alone cost a dollar and a quarter and there were three kinds of pies. Tom Smith says the supper was one of the best he ever sat down to.

The happy couple were the recipients of innumerable handsome and valuable presents, but we have only space to enumerate a few. Should our readers demand it, we may publish the balance next week in a supplement.

N. B.—This is not a report of a sure enough Baxter wedding, but simply an account of a voluminous, but supposititious affair that is likely to take place later on when the "frost is on the pumpkin and the fiddler's in the shock," wherein one of our prominent stock dealers may possibly assume a leading part.
